From the desk of Fr Jerry. FIFTH SUNDAY OF LENT

As Christians and creatures of God, we have our own expectations from Almighty God. Without God's assistance, we seem to be dead and have no real and meaningful life. When Martha met Jesus, she voiced the common expectation. The one whom you love, Lazarus is dead. Indeed Jesus is well known for his miracles, He should have been able to heal him: "he opened the eyes of the blind man, could He not have prevented this man's death?" Martha then expresses her belief in the future resurrection of the dead.

Jesus promises her the gift of resurrection, which begins here, and now for those who believe in him. Jesus' show of distress is a reaction to the mourners who probably failed to understand the significance of the whole event. He further rebukes Martha for her unbelief. The prayer of Jesus underscores his relationship with the Father. Finally, Jesus then calls Lazarus to life. The drama of Jesus raising Lazarus to life is a fulfilment of his earlier words. He is the giver of life and for those who believe in him, eternal life begins here on this earth.

Although Christ loves Lazarus and his sisters when he received the message of his sickness, he stays on for two more days. The purpose is clear. Jesus has authority over life and death and the raising of Lazarus will point to Jesus as the giver of life to all those who believe in him.

Covering of Crosses and other images in Lent.

It was a remnant of an ancient practice of public penance in which the penitents were ritually expelled from the church at the beginning of Lent. After the ritual of public penance fell into disuse, the entire congregation symbolically entered the order of penitents by receiving ashes on Ash Wednesday. In the modern era, it was no longer possible to expel them from the church. Rather, the altar or "Holy of Holies" was shielded from view until they were reconciled to God at Easter.

The Holy Mother Church has kept this tradition and ritual till the present time. In Northampton diocese, this practice of covering of crosses and other images in the church takes place in all churches on the 5th Sunday of Lent. Some of the reasons for these practices are worth considering.

Psychologically, the custom of veiling crosses and images helps us to concentrate on the great essentials of Christ's work of Redemption. These moments of covering define a break from the old as we prepare for the new life in Easter.

Historically, this practice or custom started in Germany from the ninth century, of extending a large cloth before the altar from the beginning of Lent. Although this is true, its significance is gradually losing its meaning. This cloth, called the "Hungertuch" (hunger cloth), hid the altar entirely from the faithful during Lent and was not removed until during the reading of the Passion on Holy Wednesday at the words "the veil of the temple was rent in two."

Educationally, it was a practical way that illiterate lay faithful needed to know that it was Lent. It was a way to catechize the illiterate lay faithful through signs and images in the early days. This form of education encourages an active, conscious and full participation in the liturgy.

In sum, the covering of crosses and other images in the season of Lent engage our senses, which draw us into the mysteries of Christ's passion, death and resurrection.
