SEVENTEENTH SUNDAY OF THE YEAR: Theme: "Lord Teach us to pray"

The Catechism of the Catholic Church has dedicated Chapter 4 of the book to Christian prayer (CCC#2558-2858). Prayer is based on our personal relationship with the living and true God. The Church teaches that just as Jesus prays to the Father and gives thanks before receiving his gifts, so he teaches us filial boldness. (CCC#2610) We need to Ask boldly, we need to seek diligently, and knock trustfully. It is important for us to reflect on why Jesus ended today's gospel with a reference to the Holy Spirit. After telling his disciples the kinds of things a son might ask of his Father, he quickly added how the Father delights in giving the Holy Spirit to those who ask. Indeed, the Holy Spirit is the most precious and ultimate gift of God.

The Spirit reveals to us everything about the Father. He gives us knowledge of the things of God. Through the Spirit, we are led to greater prayerful devotion and a deeper reverence for the things of God. Without God's Spirit, we are dead: with God's Spirit we are recreated and filled with life.

Let us always pray that God will give us in abundance the gift of the Holy Spirit.
